Lt. Gov. Singel Encourages Summer Fill-Up

Lt. Gov. Mark S. Singel is encouraging all Pennsylvanians who heat their homes with propane or No. 2 heating oil to fill their tanks now and avoid paying substantially higher prices later in the year.

"Prices are at their lowest since last September," Singel said. "Now is a good time to fill-up before the seasonal rise begins, usually in early Fall."

The Lt. Governor, who chairs the Pennsylvania Energy Office (PEO), noted that the PEO's July 31 heating oil survey reported an average retail price of $8.82 per gallon. Propane currently lists at $1.02 per gallon.

"We have seen over the last several years that heating oil Singel said. "Prices take a more notable increase in December."

The Lt. governor noted that today's PEO heating oil survey reported an average retail price of $8.85 per gallon, a $.03 per gallon increase since July 31. Gasoline prices reflect the same $.03 per gallon average increase for the same period.

"As a nation we have done little in the last decade to reduce our dependence on foreign sources for crude oil and gasoline," Singel said, "I firmly believe that as a state and as a nation we must focus on developing non-petroleum alternatives such as compressed gas, methanol, ethanol and advanced fuel technologies to ensure our security."

Singel also cited the recent OPEC accord and other actions in the Middle East as additional incentive for summer fill-up.

Lt. Gov. Singel Jahn Receives Orders Oil Price Scholarship Monitoring

Lt. Gov. Mark S. Singel recently announced he is sending a letter to the CEOs of the major companies supplying refined petroleum products to Pennsylvania telling them that, "The people of this Commonwealth will not tolerate unjustified price increases."

"Given the recent events surrounding Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and in my capacity as Chairman of the Pennsylvania Energy Office (PEO)," Singel said, "I have instructed the PEO to begin to monitor the prices of various refined products, including gasoline, heating fuel oil and propane, to determine if the prices are escalating more rapidly than events warrant."

Singel said he recognizes that the recent OPEC agreement which raised the price of crude oil by $3.00 per barrel may, in fact, justify a small increase in the final price at the pump.

He added that those increases are not expected to raise the price more than 3 cents per gallon at the retail level. In addition, current supplies and inventories appear to be at higher than normal levels for this time of year.

"In any case," said Singel, "it is just too early for events in the Middle East to have an effect on gasoline prices at the pump."

Singel has encouraged all Pennsylvanians who heat their homes with propane or No. 2 heating oil to fill their tanks now and avoid paying substantially higher prices later in the year.

"We have seen over the last several years that heating oil prices have begun their gradual seasonal rise in late August and continue through October," Singel said. "Prices take a more notable increase in December."

In 1989, Pennsylvania experienced the coldest December in at least 60 years. An early winter cold wave placed tremendous demands on heating fuel supplies and, because of the strain on the distribution system, prices rose dramatically. Between November and December, heating oil prices increased $.18 per gallon. Propane prices increased $.26 per gallon.

4th Annual "MDA Run"

The Mason Dixon Chapter Abate of Pa. held their 4th Annual "MDA Run" on July 28, 1990. The chairman for the MDA Run reported $3130 was collected and will be presented at the Labor Day Weekend Telethon.

Money was raised from the entry fees ($5/person) sponsor sheets, the sales of t-shirts and pins. (If you didn't buy your pin at the run, there are only a few left) and from the merchants and their patrons for the canister donations.

The Chapter wants to thank ALL who contributed money, ALL who contributed prizes and a special thanks to the State, Local and Fire Co. police for directing traffic and leading us through towns.

In addition we thank all the non-members who joined us on our 90 mile scenic ride through York, Adams and Franklin Counties.
